Barševskis A. 2020. To the knowledge of long-horned beetles (Coleoptera: Cerambycidae) of the Oriental Region. Part 3. Acta Biol. Univ. Daugavp., 20 (2): 173 – 188.

New faunistic records are presented for 164 species of long-horned beetles (Coleoptera: Cerambycidae) of the Oriental Region and adjacent territories. Records of 21 species presents the first faunistic data after the original description, and two taxa are recorded for the first time for the local fauna: Eunidia atripennis Pu & Yang, 1993 for Vietnam and Cyriotasiastes rhetenor mindorensis Vives, 2009 for Luzon Island (Philippines).

Key words: Fauna, distribution, Coleoptera, Cerambycidae, rare species.

INTRODUCTION

The present study is the third part of series of articles, which providing the faunistic data about long-horned beetles (Coleoptera: Cerambycidae) of the Oriental Region. For the past decades, faunistic studies has been significantly considered by many entomologists, but, unfortunately, some of them with the minor importance and even unscientific. As a result, it followed that's a little published faunistic data or these data for some zoogeographical regions are missing. There is also very little information on the distribution of long-horned beetles in the Oriental Region. For many rare species, no additional findings after their description. This is a major challenge for the biodiversity protection, especially in tropical regions, where natural habitats are declining rapidly. Many species need strict protection, but the necessary data about them are lacking. The main aim of this study is to reduce the lack of the faunistic data for some species.

Therefore, this article presents new records of many species of long-horned beetles. The purpose of this series is to supplement data on the distribution of Cerambycidae of the Oriental Region. In the first part, Barševskis (2018) published data about 34 little-known species of long-horned beetles, including records of 11 species which were provided for the first time after their original descriptions. In the second part, Barševskis (2019) published faunistic data for 85 species, including records of five species which are provided for the first time after the original description and new records of three species for the local country or island fauna. This article also includes some species with findings outside the Oriental Region, e.g. from Japan, India, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands and Australia. This should complement the faunistic data of longhorn-beetles in general.

Several articles on the fauna of the Oriental Region have been published this year (Vives 2020a, 2020b, Lazarev & Murzin 2020, etc.). These studies containing descriptions of new species and faunistic data about the distribution of rare and interesting species.

This article presents faunistic data for 164 species of longhorned beetles. Records of 21 species are provided for the first time after the original description, and two taxa are recorded for the first time for the local fauna: Eunidia atripennis Pu & Yang, 1993 from Vietnam and Cyriotasiastes rhetenor mindorensis Vives, 2009 from Luzon, Philippines.

MATERIAL AND METHODS

All specimens were determined by the author and deposited in Daugavpils University Beetles Collection (DUBC – Ilgas, Daugavpils Distr., Latvia). The laboratory research have been made by Nikon AZ100, Nikon SMZ745T and Zeiss Stereo Lumar V12 digital stereomicroscopes, NIS-Elements 6D software, and Canon 60D and Canon 1 Ds Mark II cameras. The taxonomic list of species below follows Tavakilian & Chavillotte (2020) and Berzak (2020).
